In a number of ways, Photoshop has a leg up over other image editors. * Photoshop enables you to do so much that many people find them self-satisfied and complex. Once you know how to do everything you want to do in Photoshop, it isn't hard to find additional ways to do things Photoshop was never designed to do. There are too many features to cover in one article. If you're a Photoshop user and a passionate one, you'll find enough to keep you busy for years. * Photoshop is a Macintosh-only application at the time of this writing. All computers running the Mac OS, plus almost all computers running Windows, come with Adobe Photoshop on them. If you're a PC user, you can make do with Paint Shop Pro, a software program that works similarly to Photoshop and has the same photo editing capabilities. * Because the Mac's operating system handles display and file types differently than PC computers, it is easy to just plug a picture from your computer into a Mac and it will look perfect. * Very high-end graphics work is less common in the design and web worlds because Photoshop is so dominant in this market. ## Photoshop's Tools Like all image editors, Photoshop has a built-in toolbox with which you create image edits and retouch people and objects in your pictures. Here's a basic description of the tools: * The Brushes tool enables you to create various kinds of brushes for applying and subtracting color or effects to your images. * The Selection tool lets you create a selection area on your image and then save that image with the selection intact. You can use the Selection tool to resize and move parts of an image. *

Q: Does HTML Form Submission Only OnClick I am using a Form to submit a Value to a Database. I am submitting using PHP and setting it up like so: Does it matter if I click on the submit button? When I submit the form it goes to the insert.php. But can't I submit the form using a button? A: It's not the HTML form, its the submit event. A: There is one major difference between a link and submit, in that a form also highlights the current page, whereas a link does not. As Paulie_D stated, the submit button adds the value to the form, which is technically speaking, it's the one.js call to submit the form. I've never noticed that it would be a problem if a link was used, however it's not considered best practice. A: Your browser sends the click event to the server via GET while the form submission occurs via POST. They are two different ways of doing the same thing. The only difference is that a form submission automatically sends the current page URL to the server, whereas with a link, you must also provide a GET parameter with the URL: If you are using POST for a form submission, the URL sent to the server would be In other words, if you do not include the add=value parameter in a URL, the URL sent to the server in a form submission would be something like which is different from the one that is sent via a link. Antique: Here I am wearing old antiques. I know guys out there will be like "hey what the hell is she wearing" it's from an old picture of me from 1993 wearing Viva House. When I first got my Viva House its black and was a heavy thick feeling.I really never liked it that much but I wore it for a couple of months. I got tired of it in 1994 or so and so I started wearing a black hat. So I started looking for old hats and found some hats at the Mercantile National in San Diego that I loved. "Hey ya'll how're you doin' ohh snap it's our girl here and hey ya'll what ya'll thinkin' bitch we want you to look at these hats" ya know how it goes but I was like yeah. So I got a few hats that I liked for a couple of years and then I went through a real hat phase and saw that I liked how they played with color and style. So now I wear all kinds of hats and they're all my hats. I like how they change and how they transform me and whatnot and how there style matches who I am today. So all in all I am married with 6 kids who inspired me to want to have a baby and so it's really come full circle. And so now I have a baby, a growing baby and a beautiful baby, the mother of all. So it's really cool to be out here talking about it all. I was in the baby section of the store that I found it all in. I walked in and looked through the hats. They had some hats from the 40's, 50's, 60's and I just started checking them out. "Oh my gosh I love these hats" and then I found my hat and I was like "Oh my god this is it I love it" so I took it and I took it and I tried it on. I put it on and I went I'm wearing this hat! I look in the mirror it's 9:55am. I am ready to go to work. I am beautiful! I am a beautiful person when I wear my hat. I don't know if people can see it but I can definitely see it. So I came to this hat store and I was like oh my gosh the most beautiful hat and they said no sorry. Then I got here and I was like oh my god this is the most beautiful hat. I guess all
