" during office hours i usually use jeppview and tc mobile (but i use often the apps from my ipad). at home, the pc is used to send/receive e-mails, but i can use most of the day my laptop to play games (black ops 2 download full and darkwatch 2 dvd), or some movie/show on netflix, and i also listen to music (youtube, mp3 or wma format). however, i can use my ipad to watch movies or listen to music (either in youtube or i music), although for movies i prefer netflix. having many different "displays" is nice for troubleshooting as well;) just to give you a little perspective, i've had jeppview for about 4 months. i have 3 e-charts (one for the us, one for the eu and one for a non-eu region where i travel often). initially i had jeppview running only on the pc, and for my personal use. i find it really useful for solving range issues (over the range, over the flight plan and over the maps) and resolution of track issues (crossing to a waypoint). since my first flight i have started using the ipad and now i usually have my ipad, an e-chart loaded in jeppview (for flightplan) and one loaded in tc mobile (for range, resolution of track and icao). jeppview is "less powerful" (e.g. there are less features) and tc mobile is "more powerful" (e. it has more features) (subjective). sometimes i connect the ipad to the tv and watch movies (black ops 2 free) or maybe play some game (black ops 2) and for short series in netflix (or in youtube), but these days i mostly use the ipad.
